

People pray when they want to and where they want to. It's their way of getting into contact with God.

Praying is good because it helps you make contact with God.

I think praying is silly because no one is listening.

If people want to pray then they should be able to.

When you pray it calms you down and gives you someone to talk to.

I pray when someone is in trouble in my family.

If praying helps you then do it. It's not hurting anyone by praying.

Prayer brings faith into action. It is a personal "talk" to God. Prayer is the answer to any questions as long as you have faith.

I only pray occasionally but when I do it's usually because I want something.
