

Dear Parents/Carers,

As our second week of online learning for all year groups draws to a close, we would like to emphasise that teachers are setting work in order to provide structure and productive occupation for the pupils in these long days of restrictions. We understand completely that there are wide variations in family circumstances and that the amount of time and effort that pupils will be able to dedicate to their studies will also vary for many different reasons. The important thing is that pupils do their best in the time that you as a family deem appropriate for weekday study.

Pupils should aim to keep sending in what they have done regularly to their teachers who are then able to make any necessary corrections and give advice for improvement. This interaction and exchange will mean that pupils continue to make progress during this period of school closure. Please also be assured that if a pupil needs extra help or is unsure of how to approach/complete a task, they can email their subject teacher for guidance. We will also email all pupils on their Stanwell webmail addresses today with the same message.

Heads of Year will be monitoring pupil engagement and will contact you with any concerns in order to keep you informed and check on pupils' wellbeing; please also feel free to contact your child's Heads of Year if there are any issues of which they may need to be made aware.

Next Friday May 8th is a UK Bank Holiday to commemorate the 75th anniversary of VE Day; no work will be set on this day and we hope that all our pupils and their families enjoy the Bank Holiday weekend as much as is possible.

Thank you all for your continued support and best wishes at this time of national concern and uncertainty.

Kind Regards,

Stanwell School
